

The Evening Herald

JONES Had Sense Enough to get Off the Ice, Anyway.

TRIBUNE-CITIZEN.
Vol. 26, No. 56.

ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1914.

THE EVENING HERALD
VOL. 1, NO. 16.

SIMULTANEOUS ATTACK PLANNED BY VILLA ON MAZATLAN AND TORREON

General Obregon with Seven Thousand Men Moving on Pacific Coast Port with Intention of Immediate Assault While Commander in Chief Drives Federals Out of Railroad Center, thus Clearing Northern Mexico

CAMPAIGN IF SUCCESSFUL WILL OPEN THE WAY TO NATIONAL CAPITAL

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.)

Douglas, Ariz., March 19.—General Alvaro Obregon's objective is Mazatlan, the sea port of Simón, but constitutionalists had no information that the attack on the federal garrison had been begun. The last news from Obregon was three days ago, when he was at Nacozari, where he had gathered Obregon took seven thousand men with him from Sonora, with a large quantity of ammunition for cannon and small arms. With the forces of General Burle, Catacaso and Bustamante, Obregon would have more than 12,000 men available for the assault of Mazatlan.

The rebel plan contemplates the fall of Mazatlan and then a march southward through Tepic and Jalisco to Mexico City.

SIMULTANEOUS ATTACK ON TORREON AND MAZATLAN

Mazatlan, Mexico, March 19.—A simultaneous attack on Torreón and Mazatlan was predicted today in advance received here. It was said that while General Villa's rebel army was moving against Torreón, forces under General Obregon would assault Mazatlan. Obregon was reported to be moving 12,000 troops against the Pacific coast port.

This was said to be part of a general plan for an aggressive movement against all federal forces in northern Mexico. General Obregon as well as the northwestern military zone would have charge of operations along the coast, while General Villa as constitutionalist commander in Chihuahua would assault Torreón.

The plan, Mazatlan, it was considered, would gain virtual control of the western coast district, while Torreón is the railroad center of central Mexico, the capture of which would threaten the capital. After the capture of these two points both armies would move against Guadalajara, which is the strategic key to the interior.

According to the plan, Guaymas will be invaded in the hope that the California gulf port will fall with the capture of Mazatlan.

In the projected campaign on the west coast the gunboat Tampico, recently surrendered to the insurgents, would be employed to counter the naval force of the government on the coast. Mazatlan is considered easier to take by reason of its location than Guaymas, which has been attacked repeatedly without result.

It was said that the simultaneous movements against Torreón and Mazatlan had received the sanction of General Obregon, who was marching overland into Chihuahua.

BAN ON NEWS FROM THE FRONT REMAINS FIRM

The ban on news out of the interior below this point remained firm this morning. Indirect information, however, indicated that there had been no fighting of consequence during the last few days.

General Villa, in his official advices, did not make known his plans nor what was occurring to the north of Torreón. Officials here seemed to be as ignorant of the situation as the public.

It was explained that the absolute embargo on news carried to the border either by train or telegraph had been imposed in order to prevent the Torreón garrison being informed of the insurgent troop movements by way of Eagle Pass or Mexico City. It was said that the rebel general had been operating steadily in this region.

The news from the national capital that officials there had denied with regret the reported federal victories above Torreón dispelled all belief in such reports.

Federals Evacuate Las Vacas

Del Rio, Tex., March 19.—Three hundred Mexican federal soldiers were planning to attack Las Vacas, across, opposite here, evacuated the place today. Their destination and reasons for leaving are not known.

Since Monday there has been repeated reports that constitutionalists were planning to attack Las Vacas. Removal of activity between federales and constitutionalists along this section of the border has been reported imminent for some time.

IMPERATOR IS BADLY DAMAGED IN ROUGHEST PASSAGE IN HER CAREER

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.)

New York, March 19.—The steamship Imperator, arriving from Hamburg today after the roughest voyage of her career. The port wing of her giant eagle figurehead was gone and four lifeboats were missing from the davits, having been carried away by a wave, on the night of March 18. Driven by a gale of hurricane force the ship struck the imperator when she was about one mile from the English channel and ran a great damage on the foredeck deck. The hurricane lasted twenty-four hours.

Among the passengers were Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who has come to prepare for the wedding of her son Vincent, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond.

BONAR LAW MOVES VOTE OF CENSURE ON BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Opposition Leader Bases Motion on Premier's Refusal to Give Details of Ulster Program

ASKS REFERENDUM OF THE UNITED KINGDOM

London Globe Reports Arrest of Great Anti-Home Rule Leader. Reports Draws Official Denial

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.) London, March 19.—A vote of censure on the British government was moved today in the house of commons by Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition. It was based on Premier Asquith's refusal on Monday to give details of the Ulster program by which the nine counties of Ulster would be permitted to vote separately on the question of the new Irish government.

The leader of the opposition offered to give a guarantee that if the government would take a referendum of the United Kingdom on the home rule question the Unionists in both the house of lords and in the house of commons would place no impediment in the way of carrying out the will of the people.

Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, backed up Mr. Law's offer by saying that if the premier proposed a referendum he would accept that decision.

ANTI-HOME RULE LEADER SAID TO BE UNDER ARREST

London, March 19.—The Globe today says that warrants have been signed for the arrest of Sir Edward Carson and other leaders of the Ulster Unionists. It is officially declared that there is absolutely no truth in the statement made today by the Globe that warrants have been signed for the arrest of Sir Edward Carson and other Unionist leaders.

The seed company building was demolished Tuesday afternoon when one of the walls of the Missouri Athletic building fell on it. The Missouri club building, which had been under construction, collapsed under the weight of a fallen wall. Burke died several hours after being taken from the ruins.

Rescuers who had been digging in the ruins all night were working to extricate a body when they were started by Burke's call for help. After the force of eight men had worked for half an hour they found Burke pinned under a section of flooring.

Near Burke was found the body of an unidentified man, bringing the total dead found to seven.

ANOTHER VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

St. Louis, March 19.—The body of Edward J. McNamee, victim of the Missouri Athletic club fire, was identified today by a brother, H. J. McNamee of Meridian, Conn. Three bodies remain unidentified.

TOTAL OF DEAD NOW SEVEN IN SECOND DISASTER

Thomas Burke Rescued After Thirty-seven Hours in Ruins of Fallen Wall Believed to Complete List.

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.) St. Louis, March 19.—His calls for a drink of water early today led to the rescue of Thomas Burke from the ruins of the St. Louis Seed company's building thirty-seven hours after the structure collapsed under the weight of a fallen wall. Burke died several hours after being taken from the ruins.

The seed company building was demolished Tuesday afternoon when one of the walls of the Missouri Athletic building fell on it. The Missouri club building, which had been under construction, collapsed under the weight of a fallen wall. Burke died several hours after being taken from the ruins.

The seed company building was demolished Tuesday afternoon when one of the walls of the Missouri Athletic building fell on it. The Missouri club building, which had been under construction, collapsed under the weight of a fallen wall. Burke died several hours after being taken from the ruins.

Rescuers who had been digging in the ruins all night were working to extricate a body when they were started by Burke's call for help. After the force of eight men had worked for half an hour they found Burke pinned under a section of flooring.

Near Burke was found the body of an unidentified man, bringing the total dead found to seven.

ANOTHER VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

St. Louis, March 19.—The body of Edward J. McNamee, victim of the Missouri Athletic club fire, was identified today by a brother, H. J. McNamee of Meridian, Conn. Three bodies remain unidentified.

Hoboes Buy Acre on Outskirts of Sacramento

Hundred and Seventy-five Men Bask in Sunshine on Their Own Domain. Kelly's Trial Tomorrow

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.) Sacramento, Calif., March 19.—One hundred and seventy-five unemployed men basking in the sunshine on their acre of ground in North Sacramento, purchased yesterday from a recent competitor. A band of armed hoboes, untrained development.

The first of the jury trial of the army leaders was begun today. Edward Tessdale being arraigned for vagrancy. "General" Kelley will be tried tomorrow.

DISCUSS EXEMPTION OF LABOR UNIONS FROM ANTI-TRUST MEASURE

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.) Washington, March 19.—Proposals for exemption of labor unions from anti-trust legislation were discussed today at conferences between President Taft and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, and Speaker Clark.

No conclusions were announced. Some members are preparing to press for a specific provision when the bill comes up. Representative Keating may ask for a clause.

Secretary Bryan will be asked to support the proposal.

CORPORATION SIZE CLAUSE WILL BE CONSIDERED

Lincoln, Neb., March 19.—Major Robinson, who is a member of the senate sub-committee on interstate commerce having in charge the preparation of trust legislation, said here today that consideration will be given to the advisability of including in the trust bill provisions relating to the size of the corporations and also for the regulation of their capitalization but it is by no means certain that these last two bills will be included.

WILL CALL UP HIS COTTON GRADING BILL

Washington, March 19.—Senator Smith of South Carolina served notice today that he would ask tomorrow for the passage of his cotton grading bill. His action followed a protest by Senators Smith of Georgia and Overman of North Carolina against the prevailing method of cotton trading.

(By Leased Wire to Evening Herald.) Indianapolis, Ind., March 19.—Indiana Democrats in state convention here today, heading the wishes of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan declared in favor of a state-wide direct primary law when they adopted unanimously the platform presented by the committee on resolutions containing a plank endorsing the direct primary. The platform contains planks putting the party on record as favoring a state wide primary law, an election act similar to the Kildare law and a demand for a rigid enforcement of the liquor laws.

The present financial embarrassment of the state is charged to the previous "extended rule of Republican extravagance and maladministration."

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

The committee on rules recommended that Senator Shively be given a chance to speak on the subject.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be in a position to reflect on the proposal.

Mr. Lewis in his speech contended that the government could avoid use of a referendum without any sacrifice of its principles of equality. He said he does not desire to go into technicalities. He declared that if President Asquith's proposal that the counties of Ulster should vote on the question of home rule in the Irish自治 movement that Ulster would not be driven from the United Kingdom against her will, it would be accepted as a basis of discussion. If, however, it meant that at the end of a certain time the people of Ulster were to be brought automatically into the dominion of the Dublin parliament, then the Ulster Unionists would be